Emily Waytoti

Sustainability & Development Consultant

Strategic international development and sustainability leader

emshelton@gmail.com

Linkedin

Contact

25 Years of experience

Professional Bio:

Emily is a strategic international development and sustainability leader with 25+ years of experience managing complex, high-value programs across Latin America, South Asia, and the U.S. Government. She has a proven track record of success directing $100M+ portfolios in climate resilience, environmental governance, health, agriculture, and inclusive economic growth. She is skilled in cross-sector collaboration, political and donor negotiation, and leading multicultural teams in dynamic, resource-constrained environments. Fluent in Spanish and Portuguese, she has consistently aligned policy, sustainability, and social impact across government, corporate, and NGO sectors.

Throughout her career, Emily has worked with Fortune 500 companies, startups, international organizations, and grassroots NGOs, bridging sectors and functions to design and implement high-impact initiatives. She has also overseen organizational functions such as strategy, operations, finance, HR, and partnership

Skills & Expertise:

Project Management, Capacity Strengthening, MEL, Proposal Writing, Stakeholder Engagement, Climate & Resilience, WASH, Private Sector Engagement, Strategic Planning, Conflict & Stabilization, Infrastructure / Energy

Sectors of Work:

International Development, Economic Growth, Diplomacy & Foreign Affairs, Climate & Environment, Legal & Regulatory Reform, National Security / Defense, Democracy & Governance, Human Rights

Languages Spoken:

English, Spanish, Portuguese

development—often in multilingual, multi-stakeholder environments.

Today, Emily is seeking remote, part-time, or project-based consulting roles where she can apply her international experience to support mission-driven organizations—including nonprofits, social enterprises, global programs, or purpose-led companies—working toward equity, sustainability, and development outcomes.

If your team needs an experienced, globally minded partner to support Latin America-focused strategy, program implementation, or cross-cultural collaboration, Emily would welcome a conversation.

JOIN US

contact@wice.org.

WICE